Group 1

A*-ranked journals in the current ABDC rankings plus the following journals:

- British Journal of Management
- British Tax Review
- Civil Justice Quarterly
- Demography
- Griffith Law Review
- Journal of Business Ethics
- Journal of Consumer Psychology
- Journal of Law and Society
- New Zealand Law Review
- New Zealand Universities Law Review
- Osgoode Hall Law Journal
- Sydney Law Review
- University of New South Wales Law Journal

Journal articles published in the top ranked #1 through to #30 of journals on the Washington and Lee Ranking (based on the combined score at the time of acceptance of publication) will be counted as a Group 1 publication. In cases where there is inconsistency between the ratings given by the ABDC list and the Washington and Lee list, then the higher of the two ratings should be adopted.

With respect to publications outside the disciplines of business, economics, law and taxation, if a journal (i) does not appear on the current ABDC rankings and (ii) does not primarily publish in fields of research related to business, economics, law and taxation, then, unless otherwise stated, the 2010 ERA ranking of that journal will apply. For example, a 2010 ERA A*-ranked journal which meets the two conditions above would be counted as a Group 1 publication.

Group 2

A-ranked journals in the current ABDC rankings plus the following journals:

- Common Law World Review
- Journal of Environmental Law
- Journal of Legal Analysis

- Journal of Marketing Education
- Vanderbilt Journal of Transnational Law
- Vindobona Journal of International Commercial Law and Arbitration

Journal articles published in journals ranked #31 through to #90 on the Washington and Lee Ranking (based on the combined score at the time of acceptance of publication) will be counted as a Group 2 publication. In cases where there is inconsistency between the ratings given by the ABDC list and the Washington and Lee list, then the higher of the two ratings should be adopted.

With respect to publications outside the disciplines of business, economics, law and taxation, if a journal (i) does not appear on the current ABDC rankings and (ii) does not primarily publish in fields of research related to business, economics, law and taxation then, unless otherwise stated, the 2010 ERA ranking of that journal will apply. For example, a 2010 ERA A-ranked journal which meets the two conditions above would be counted as a Group 2 publication.
